I. 次の英文を読んで、それに続く設問に答えなさい。

All around the world there are special awards for unique (1) accomplishments. However, some of these awards are more unusual than others. There are awards for unusual research and even awards for terrible acting. Let's take a look at some of these awards.

We all know the famous "Nobel Prize", but have you ever heard of the "Ig Nobel Prize"? The "Ig Nobel Prize" is for research that might be considered (2) useless. For example, one year the "Ig Nobel Prize" was given to a group of researchers that found out people are less likely to slip and fall on icy streets if they have socks on the outside of their shoes. Another year, the prize went to the people that researched whether it is possible for people to swim as fast in syrup as they swim in water.

Hollywood in the United States is well-known as the home of movies and every year people watch the "Academy Awards" to see who will win for best acting. On the other hand, the "Golden Raspberry Awards" are given out for the worst in film. These awards are nicknamed the "Razzies" and are given for the worst movie of the year, the worst acting, and the worst directing amongst others. Usually, the winners do not attend the awards (3) ceremony, but occasionally a famous person will attend to accept their award and laugh about the situation.

In Finland, they have the "Air Guitar World Championships" every year. "Air guitar" is when people pretend to play guitar without having a guitar. People compete to see who can play it best. Therefore, the competition is not about guitar skills, but about stage presence and (4) creativity. It is a fun award that might not seem necessary but gives people a chance to enjoy themselves.

Finally, in order to promote (5) awareness about birds and save their environment, New Zealand has the "Bird of the Year" award. For this award, people of New Zealand vote for their favorite bird species. In 2023, they even held a "Bird of the Century" competition. Only birds that are native to New Zealand can win the award. The award first started in 2005 and it can be a very popular event on social media. It is supported by famous people and politicians. Of course, New Zealand is famous for its Kiwi bird, and it was the winner in 2009.
